STATINTL

In lieu of a full report on my recent travels, this is to let you know that my trip to St. John's University in Collegeville, Minnesota on 22-24 October was entirely successful, with all arrangements handled smoothly. The same was true of my visit to the main campus of the University of Minnesota in Minneapolis on 24 October, tacked on at the end. In all, I spoke to four classes on a variety of subjects, gave one semi-public lecture at the University of Minnesota (copy of the notice attached), and met informally with a group of students interested in career possibilities at St. John's. I thoroughly enjoyed myself, refreshed my thinking in a number of ways, and generally found it easy to do my best to justify the money laid out by both the Agency and St. Johns.

I would be more than happy to take part in any future campus visits to any location that involve freewinging discussion of topics pertaining either to the Soviet Union or the work of the Agency. Please let me know whenever I can be of any assistance to you.
